Media and Power
addresses three key
questions about the relationship between
media and society.

*How much power do
the media have? *Who really controls the
media? *What is the relationship between
media and power in society? In this major
new book, James Curran

reviews the different

answers which have been given, before

advancing original

interpretations in a

series of ground-

breaking essays. This book also provides a

guided tour of the major

debates in media

studies. What part did

the media play in the making of modern society? How did 'new media' change society in the past? Will radical

media research recover

from its mid-life crisis?

Is public service

television the dying

product of the nation in an age of globalization?

provides both a clear

introduction to media

research and an

innovative analysis of

media power.

De-Westernizing Media

Studies brings together

leading media critics

from around the world

to address central

questions in the study of the media. How do the

what influence the

Media and Democracy
addresses key topics and
themes in relation to
democratic theory,
media and technology,
comparative media
studies, media and
history, and the
evolution of media
research. For example:
How does TV
entertainment contribute to the democratic life of society? Why are

Americans less

informed about politics

and international affairs

than Europeans? How should new

technology and

globalisation change our understanding of the democratic role of the media? What does the rise of international

What is the future of journalism? Does

And The
advertising influence the

media? Is American
media independence

Britain
from government a

myth? How have the

media influenced the development of modern society? Professor

Curran's response to these questions provides

both a clear introduction
to media research,
written for university
undergraduates studying
in different countries,
and an innovative
analysis written by one of the field's leading scholars.
